Collect for the Baptism of the Lord

O God, who on this day revealed your only Begotten Son to the nations by the guidance of a star, grant in your mercy, that we, who know you already by faith, may be brought to behold the beauty of your sublime glory.

From the Catechism, on the Church's social teachings, nn. 2249

Beginning with the Old Testament, all kinds of juridical measures (the jubilee year of forgiveness of debts, prohibition of loans at interest and the keeping of collateral, the obligation to tithe, the daily payment of the day-laborer, the right to glean vines and fields) answer the exhortation of Deuteronomy: "For the poor will never cease out of the land; therefore I command you, 'You shall open wide your hand to your brother, to the needy and to the poor in the land.'" Jesus makes these words his own: "The poor you always have with you, but you do not always have me." In so doing he does not soften the vehemence of former oracles against "buying the poor for silver and the needy for a pair of sandals..." but invites us to recognize his own presence in the poor who are his brethren: When her mother reproached her for caring for the poor and the sick at home, St Rose of Lima said to her: "When we serve the poor and the sick, we serve Jesus. We must not fail to help our neighbors, because in them we serve Jesus."

From the Pastor's Desk

With today's celebration of the Baptism of the Lord, we mark the last day of the Christmas season. It's finally "safe" to take down your Christmas decorations, which we will do in churches all across the world today.

Speaking of Christmas decorations, I want to thank each of our parishioners who volunteered to put decorate our little church for Christmas and to take them down again. I won't name them all here, but I do want to state publicly how grateful and appreciative I am of all who serve our parish in this way. It is a great help to me personally, but it is also a moment where we get to know each other in a spirit of service and comradery.

Anyone who might want to volunteer for decorating during Christmas and Easter or who might want to help with our parish socials or other events, please let me know and we'll surely find some way for you to serve your parish and your fellow parishioners.

On a very practical note, this past week some of you may have noticed some work being done all around the church. We are having an irrigation system installed to better maintain the landscaping and to prepare for other landscaping improvements in the future. Over the past couple of years, we've gone through extended periods without rain, sometimes for nearly a month or more, and this has had its toll on the plants and greenery around the church. With the new watering system in place, we can more easily maintain the neat and charming look of our little parish.

The annual celebration of the Baptism of the Lord, falling as it does at the beginning of the new year, should make us think back to our own beginnings in the faith. Most of us will not remember our own baptisms, as we were baptized when we were only a few weeks old.

At that important moment, it was our parents and godparents who spoke for us and on our behalf, the words of faith and belief that led to our baptism. Faith is one of the greatest gifts that parents can give to their children. And in having their children baptized, parents and godparents must promise to model for their children what it means to follow Christ. The example of a Christian life lived faithfully and courageously is what draws others to Christ and his Church.

The grace of baptism is precisely what makes it possible for us to follow Christ more closely as we grow as his disciples. As adults, the grace we received long ago in baptism is now ours to make fruitful. In a real sense the choice is ours, whether to listen to the Father's beloved Son and become his disciple or to walk away from him to serve some other "god." May each of us always choose the way that leads to life and heed the voice of him who has the words of everlasting life.

Fr Guillory
